HWR-CHEMIE GmbH® and the environment

- Protecting the environment is one of the leading principles of our company policy. After all, preserving nature and hence the life resources for the succeeding generations is one of our primary concerns.
- At HWR-CHEMIE®, a whole team of quality-control specialists is engaged in the continuous auditing of all company departments to ensure a comprehensive quality and environmental management.
- We especially emphasize the design of environmentally friendly products, and therefore avoid the use of raw materials harmful to the environment.
- Our products are manufactured under conditions designed to strictly limit the generation of waste. And we apply the same principles to packaging, storage, and shipping.
- As our products are highly concentrated, a little goes a long way - yet another contribution to preserving the environment.
- The raw materials used in our products are highly effective yet biodegradable, fully removable by sewage processing, and non-toxic to humans, animals and plants.
- All formulas used in HWR-CHEMIES® products are continuously registered with the competent and verified for compliance with all legal requirements.
- By developing and manufacturing environmentally friendly products, we encourage our customers to make a conscious decision to join our philosophy and make active protection of the environment a priority in their daily cleaning habits.

Gentle on the environment and perfect for daily use:
Products from HWR-CHEMIE® help conserve environmental resources and preserve values.

How do you make your products so good they surpass even the highest quality and availability requirements? The answer: you do everything yourself! And if you get to join all processes perfectly, the end results will be perfect as well.

A neat piece of work for our customers: In response to the multifaceted requirements of the market, HWR-CHEMIE® develops a range of highly efficient cleaning agents. These products are manufactured at our own facilities and directly distributed to our customers through our competent sales and service teams.

4 Our production-cycle

HWR-CHEMIE® in the daily use

- The number-one priorities of our research and development efforts are user-friendliness and product safety. Our products are designed for easy handling and low-risk user application.
 - Frequent regular laboratory and field testing guarantees the high continuous effectiveness and cleaning power of our products.
 - Another important criterion in our testing regimen is storage stability and cold resistance as well as the material compatibility and skin tolerance of our products.
 - The health of our customers is our number-one priority. Our cleaning concentrates therefore contain only skin-friendly and hypoallergenic raw materials.
 - Our cleaning concentrates are easy to use, fast acting, and a little goes a long way.
- We take pride in meeting the demands and challenges of our customers. Our teams of experts spend a lot of time and effort on application-specific issues in order to produce effective and workable solutions for day-to-day practice.

Research and development

The secret of our success has always been our intense and environment-conscious research and development work. Then as now, we have been spending much more effort on this aspect than the majority of our competitors. All our products are developed at our laboratory while taking into account our customers' wishes and requirements. The raw materials used by us are selected for their effectiveness and their ecological and physiological characteristics, such as e.g. excellent biodegradability, removability through sewage processing, and excellent tolerance by humans, animals and plants.

Warehouse and logistics

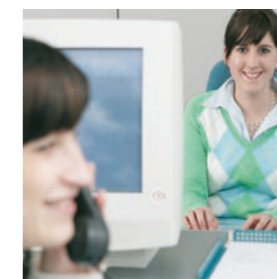

All orders which reach us by phone, fax, e-mail or our sales force are processed immediately. Our reliable staff and well-filled warehouse ensure extra short processing times. That's why our products usually reach our customers the very next day. Our products are delivered regionally by our motor pool, and nationally and internationally by experienced forwarders or international parcel services. That way our products arrive fast and at their freshest - for satisfying cleanness and hygiene.

Production and bottling

Maintaining the high quality of our products through environmentally-friendly manufacturing is our number-one production goal. Our products are manufactured in batches on the basis of written production orders. These production orders contain detailed working instructions for mixing and emulsifying processes as well as production regulations and health and safety measures. Each of our products is manufactured in accordance with strict quality criteria which are verified regularly by our testing laboratory. Thanks to our in-house labelling and bottling lines for bottles, canisters and barrels, we are able to flexibly meet all of our customers' bottling requirements.

Sales and service

One of our biggest strengths is our efficient sales and consulting system. Our professionally trained field staff will be glad to assist you and answer your questions wherever you are. Also, our team of experienced professionals from the fields of chemistry, technology and hygiene is available round the clock and will be glad to lend an open ear to your wishes, suggestions, or concerns. Of course we also provide specific product descriptions and safety data sheets. That way, our customers not only get the best products, but all necessary information for their safe and target-oriented use as well.

Know-how and commitment

HWR-CHEMIE® is a partner you can rely on. We provide not only the best possible products for your specific applications, we provide the best customized service as well. Ever since we first started, we have made it a top priority to turn good ideas into tangible benefits for our customers. Our best idea so far was to place our best bet on highly motivated and well-trained employees who personally attend to your needs and wishes and serves as your dedicated local points of contact.

We are your specialist for systemic solutions

We have successfully developed more than 160 products to suit our customers' various needs and applications which we keep in our product range at all times. All of these products are based on our philosophy of maximum user friendliness. That's why our products complement each other perfectly, making HWR-CHEMIE® the perfect partner for systemic solutions to meet any requirement. Let us show you how easy it is to cover all your needs from a single source!

Do you have any special wishes?

To HWR-CHEMIE®, service is more than lip service. The sky is the limit – anything to keep our customers satisfied. That's why we'll be happy to bottle our products in special customized containers, dye them in the colours of your choice, or scent them with a fragrance of your choice - to name just a few examples. And how may we help you?

Our competent and friendly employees guarantee for best communication and successful customer relations.

Added value from the professionals

At your request we'll be happy to customize cleaning and hygiene programs tailored specifically for your needs. We also prepare HACCP concepts for food-processing enterprises and conduct appropriate training sessions. National federal food hygiene regulations require companies to implement a quality management system pursuant to HACCP (risk analysis and critical control issues), regardless of company size.

The complexity and effort required for that purpose is often overwhelming to in-house employees. That is why we offer operational and risk analyses for all areas concerned with food safety. Let us take matters in our hands: we determine your critical control issues, we prepare customized HACCP manuals, we work out test routines, and we train your employees.

Good advice is just a phone call away!
